

Siisteys ja järjestys Cleanliness and order

Housekeeping

Good housekeeping of the turnaround site is of significant importance for safety. For instance, misplaced waste or tools increase the risk of accidents and injuries. There are many materials used in the site, some of which might cause environmental damage if not sorted properly.

The departmental rules have to be followed in all waste sorting. Materials left over or unused have to be removed and sorted every day. Just cleaning the work site after the work period is not considered good housekeeping enough. It is the responsibility of us all to keep the whole area clean.

Please put extra focus on keeping the routes clear. This is especially important to ensure pedestrian and vehicle traffic safety in the turnaround area.

If the workplace is left uncleaned, Borealis might charge the cleaning costs from the contractor.

Thank you for your commitment to ensure good housekeeping in our area!

Turvallista työpäivää!
Have a safe workday!

Themes for discussion:

- ✓ Why is good housekeeping so important in the turnaround site?
- ✓ What kind of risks might be related to improper housekeeping in the turnaround site?
- ✓ Which are the areas of housekeeping that feel challenging?
- ✓ How can I improve my actions to support good housekeeping?

On the way to the best turnaround in Europe

SAFETY - BUSINESS - EFFICIENCY - LEADERSHIP